WHERE IS GOD?

****

The King asked his chief priest :-

1) Where is God?

2) Why cannot I see Him?

3) What does He do day & night?

The priest was taken aback. He floundered for answers.

The king told him that he gets 3 days to answer the questions, and if he fails to satisfy then his head will roll.

The priest went home dejected.

The priest's son was away from home & returned after 2 days to see his father sad & dejected.

The father told the son the matter as it was. The son asked permission from his father to go to the king & try to answer the questions. The father told son not to risk his life, as he himself is at a loss to find the answers, with all his experience over the years.

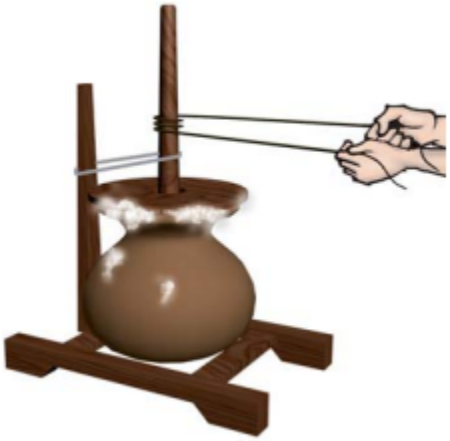
The son told him to permit him to go in his place & keep trust in God. At last the father agreed.

On the third day, the boy went & requested an audience with the king wrt the questions given to his father. Permission granted, on condition that his head will roll, if failed.

The boy requested the king to provide a pot of milk. It was done.

The boy asked the king to look for any other thing inside the milk, whether solid. The king said that the milk is only liquid. But still the boy insisted the king to dip his hand and search well to see it was only liquid milk. The king did so and confirmed only liquid in the pot.

The boy requested for churning the milk with a churning stick.



The churning process was started. The boy asked the churning to be done vigorously and non-stop. After some time butter started coming and floated on top of the liquid.

The boy asked the king:- " Sir, you searched the milk all over and found only liquid. Where did the solid butter come from?"

The king:- "It was in the milk".
Boy:- "Where was it then? On top, bottom, below, left side, right side, or center, where?"
King :- "It was all over, but invisible."
Boy :- "But now, how did the butter become visible?"
King:- "By the continuous & vigorous churning process."
Boy :- " I have answered your first and second questions."
King :- " Pl enlighten me, as to how?"
Boy :- Question # 1:- " Just like the butter that was all over the milk, God is all over the Universe, invisible to the physical eyes".
Question # 2 :- " You could see the butter by continuous & rigorous churning process. The same way by continuous meditation God can be realised & seen".
King :- " I am satisfied with your answers. But what about my third question? What is your answer for that?"
Boy :- " Excuse me Sir, for that, for a few minutes we have to exchange our positions."
There was an outcry from the courtiers, and they wanted the boy to be skinned alive.
The King quietened the courtiers.
King stepped down and stood in place of the boy.
They exchanged the crown for the headcloth, the sceptre for the wooden rod.
The boy went up and sat on the throne & held the authority of the sceptre, with the crown in his head.
The boy said:- "Sir, in a few minutes, you became a common man, and I became king. Now I have the authority to ----------. This is what God does day & night. To make lives change from one stage to another, depending on their past actions, whether good or bad. He makes a king, a pauper & a pauper, a king in the blink of an eye."
The boy came down and exchanged positions with the king.

The king said:- " I am fully satisfied with your answers. You have opened my eyes. Ask for anything."

The boy :- "Sir, I have nothing to ask, except release my father from the punishment you have imposed".

The King agreed and sent the boy with state honours to his home.
